

Poconos Family Resort Debuts at Home Programming for Guests

Woodloch Pines, an all-inclusive family resort located in Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains, is offering fun and games for guests to stay busy during its temporarily closure

Hawley, PA, March 22, 2020 – The outbreak of the COVID-19 virus has proved extremely challenging for many businesses, with the restaurant and lodging sector of the economy hit particularly hard. Woodloch Pines, an all-inclusive family resort located in Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains, temporarily closed on Tuesday, March 17th with plans to reopen on Monday, April 6th. Family-owned and operated since 1958, Woodloch's core mission is built upon treating guests like family. Their tagline, "together is the best place to be," speaks volumes about the emphasis the resort places on bonding and connection with loved ones. Needless to say, this proves challenging in the current climate as the world works together to employ social distancing in an effort to "flatten the curve" and stop the spread of the virus.

It is in times of crisis when each of us as global citizens need each other the most. Understanding this necessity to come together emotionally while being apart physically, the family resort, always focused on "togethering," was inspired to create its brand new program, Woodloch at Home. Many of the resort's signature activities that remain guest favorites year after year are home-grown, team-building events completely unique to the property and the brain child of the talented Woodloch Activities Staff. These include events such as scavenger hunts, game show contests, and deejay-led dance parties.

Woodloch at Home offers guests the chance to join in a wide array of activities and games remotely through both the resort's website and social media channels. Additionally, the programming offers users the chance to explore classic Woodloch recipes, music, interviews, and more. This allows individual families to remain in the privacy of their own homes while staying connected digitally with Woodloch's energetic staffers, eager to lead the charge.

"We are extremely saddened by the COVID-19 crisis that the world is currently facing. First and foremost, we extend our heartfelt thoughts and prayers and wish everyone health and safety as we navigate this uncharted territory together. Although we cannot serve as a respite for people to come together in person at this time, we are grateful to be in a position to spread the Woodloch spirit digitally and still be able to touch many people," said Brad Kiesendahl, C.E.O. of Woodloch Pines. He continued, "Our goal has always been to bring positivity and brightness into the lives of others. Now more than ever, there is no greater need for this. When we get through these challenging times, Woodloch will be here waiting as we all come back -- together."
